Summary/services offered:

Beyond our General Contracting services, SENERGY360 also offers healthy home management and consulting for any project. We leverage building biology insights and practices, employing comprehensive holistic building solutions. Our Healthy Home Assessments include our most popular Comprehensive Onsite Visual Healthy Home Assessment that covers basic measurements of onsite EMF conditions, mold sampling, along with indoor air quality measurements including total volatile organic compounds (TVOC) and formaldehyde. We also offer a Healthy Home Certification Program.

What drew you to this profession?

This profession did not exist. It was born out of my passion for performance and healthy living coupled with my experience as a General Contractor and elite athlete. It has evolved, as I began to understand and learn the science and healing power of nature.

How does your work differ from others in your profession?

We have revolutionized the construction industry, blazing the path to educate and inspire others to follow suit.

What should someone expect from working with you?

Someone should expect a meticulous attention to detail, a thorough and deep understanding of Building Biology and the science of creating healthy living environments.

What changes do you plan in 2024?

We are in the midst of developing several healthy home communities around the country. We plan to set a new standard for building homes.

What is most important for Natural Awakenings' readers to know?

Readers should understand the impact their living environment has on their health. They should expect their home to support and enhance their living experience. See ad, page 5.
